Highlights

- The global equity market's year-long rally took a pause as markets absorb the prospect of global central banks tightening further due to persistent inflation
- Growth stocks outperformed value stocks during the quarter continuing the year-long momentum
- Stock selection led to relative outperformance
- The Health Care and Technology sectors positively contributed to the fund's performance on a relative basis

Looking back

During the third quarter of 2023, the U.S. economy and most significant Westernized economies saw economic growth continuing to slow as rising rates and inflation took their toll on economic activity. Inflationary pressures persisted due to the impact of record monetary and fiscal stimulus as well as the Eastern European conflict along with regulatory restrictions causing supply disruptions. These inflationary pressures have caused most global central banks to pursue aggressive monetary tightening policies in 2022 and continue into 2023. This pressure has persisted longer than markets have anticipated causing some economic statistics to show potential signs of inflation taking longer to head lower. This led global equities to retreat in the third quarter of 2023. The U.S. indexes that were down the least during the quarter were led by small cap stocks represented by the Russell 2000 Index returning -5.14%, followed by mid-cap stocks represented by the Russell Mid-Cap Index returning -4.68%, followed by technology and growth related stocks represented by the NASDAQ Composite Index returning -3.94%, followed by the S&P 500 Index returning -3.27%, followed by large cap stocks represented by the Russell Large-Cap Index returning -3.17%. Small-cap growth stocks underperformed small-cap value stocks during the quarter reversing a multi-quarter trend.

During the quarter, the portfolio team added new positions of the following equity positions to the portfolio: Pinterest Inc. (new), On Holding AG (new), Samsonite (new), Maplebear (IPO), Ambrx Biopharma Inc., (new), Gossamer bio (new), Immunovant Inc., (new), Owens Corning (new), DoubleVerify Holdings Inc. (new), Okta Inc., HashiCorp and Five Below Inc.

Also during the quarter, the portfolio exited or reduced the following equity positions in pursuit of better opportunities: Chinook Therapeutics Inc. (exited), Allegro Microsystems Inc., Cerevel Therapeutics (exited), Amylyx Pharmaceuticals and Envestnet Inc.

Performance

The Federated Hermes Kaufmann Small Cap Fund (Institutional Shares) returned -6.83% at NAV for the three months ended September 29, 2023. That compares with its benchmark, the Russell 2000 Growth Index, which returned -7.32% during the same period.

Performance contributors

How we are positioned

As the U.S. economy continues through 2023, many headwinds persist from global monetary tightening to inflation to geopolitical uncertainty. These questions amongst others are likely to endure throughout the year which could cause market uncertainty. One indicator of investor caution would be the continued quiet IPO activity since the peak in 2021. After a record-breaking year in 2021, the 2022 U.S. IPO issuance remained quiet with 71 IPOs priced in 2022. However, in 2023, the market has shown some signs of recovering with 78 IPOs raising $16 billion according to Renaissance Capital. Despite the macro uncertainties, the Kaufmann team continues to be focused on its goal of finding and investing in companies that have little dependence on the economy, good or bad, to generate significant sales and earnings growth.

A word about risk

Mutual funds are subject to risks and fluctuate in value.

International investing involves special risks, including currency risk, increased volatility, political risks and differences in auditing and other financial standards.

Investing in IPOs involves special risks such as limited liquidity and increased volatility.

The fund may invest in small capitalization (or "smallcap") companies. Small-cap companies may have less liquid stock, a more volatile share price, unproven track records, a limited product or service base and limited access to capital. The above factors could make small-cap companies more likely to fail than larger companies and increase the volatility of the fund's portfolio, performance and price. Suitable securities of small-cap companies also can have limited availability and cause capacity constraints on investment strategies for funds that invest in them.

Definitions

Alpha shows how much or how little return is generated, given the risk a portfolio takes. A portfolio with an alpha greater than 0 has earned more than expected given its beta—meaning the portfolio has generated excess return without increasing risk. A portfolio with a negative alpha is producing a lower return than would be expected given its risk.

Beta measures a portfolio's volatility relative to the market. A beta greater than 1.00 suggests the portfolio has historically been more volatile than the market as measured by the fund's benchmark. A beta less than 1.00 suggests the portfolio has historically had less volatility relative to the market.

R-squared indicates what percentage of a portfolio's movement in performance is explained by movement in performance of the market. R-squared ranges from 0 to 100, and a score of 100 suggests that all movements of a portfolio's performance are completely explained by movements in the market as measured by the fund's benchmark.

Standard deviation is a historical measure of the variability of returns relative to the average annual return. A higher number indicates higher overall volatility.

Weighted median P/E (LTM—latest 12 months) is a ratio comparing share price to earnings per share using data from the previous 12 months.

Weighted median P/E (NTM—next 12 months) is a ratio comparing share price to earnings-per-share using estimated data for the next 12 months.

Weighted median market cap is the calculation representing the median market capitalization of the stocks in the portfolio, weighted by the amount of each stock.
